and each of them, and their unknown heirs, executors, administrators, devisees and assigns and said corporations, their unknown successors, trustees and assigns, and each of them, having been three times called in open court to appear, to except, demur, answer or plead to the petition of the plaintiff herein, came not, but each of them, their unknown heirs executors, administrators, devisees and assigns, and said corporations and their unknown successors, trustees and assigns, and each of them made default.

And the Court having ordered the said defendants, their unknown heirs, executors, administrators, devisees and assigns and said corporations and their unknown successors, trustees, and assigns, and each of them are in default, and having ordered that the allegations contained in the plaintiff's petition be taken as confessed and it having been proven to the Court that the said defendants, J. E. Moore, was served by personal service more than twenty days prior to this date of the pendency of this action, as required by law, and all other above described defendants, or their unknown heirs, executors, administrators, devisees and assigns, and all of said corporations, their unknown successors, trustees and assigns, excepting the said J. E. Moore, and the Corbin Oil and Gas Company, or its unknown successors trustees and assigns, having been served by publication, as required by law, of the notice thereof, by three consecutive issues in the Tulsa Daily Legal News, as of the dates of 12/13-1923 and 12/20-1923, 12/27-1923 and 1/3-1924, said newspaper being a newspaper printed, and of general circulation in Tulsa County, State of Oklahoma. And the Court having heard the evidence and argument of the counsel, and being fully advised in the premises, finds the issue in favor of the plaintiff, Ethel B. McCarter and against all of the said defendants, and their unknown heirs, administrators, devisees and assigns, and of said corporations, and their unknown successors, trustees and assigns.

And the Court finds that Ethel B. McCarter, Plaintiff, is the legal owner of the hereinafter described premises and from the evidence of competent witnesses finds that the said Plaintiff and her privies in title have been in peaceable possession of the hereinafter described land, for more than fifteen (15) years, described as follows, to-wit:
